Dear Person

I wish to congratulate you on seeking to introduce a Code of conduct for this extremely important but in what instances will abuse and miss-representation of the facts pertaining to the subject in question be evaluated. For instance when a particular subject of importance to the public at large is in question, it is subject to the lobby system, it would make sense those being lobbied would seek to inform themselves by independent advice to get a neutral perspective on the subject.

If the code of conduct is breeched, how will this be evaluated and what are the subsequent consequences and you will adjudicate on the process?

Kind Regards
